now for you to answer...*

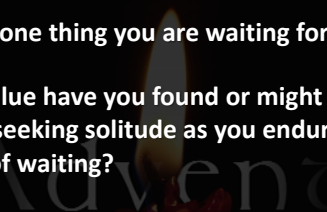

How would you describe yourself when required to wait? On pins and needles, itching to change your situation? Resigned to what may be a long trial? Eager, yet willing to wait?

What does your response to waiting reveal about your relationship with God?

Waiting doesn't mean we are doing something wrong. Looking back, when has God done a major work of preparation within you as he asked you to wait?

What is one thing you are waiting for?

What value have you found or might you find, in seeking solitude as you endure a period of waiting?

Consider now a way you might seek times of solitude to sit with God as you wait.
